

Privacy Policy

The Government Printing Council is committed to protecting the privacy of all companies or individuals that use this site.

As part of that commitment, we have established this privacy policy for the purpose of detailing the information that the Government Printing Council may gather about individuals who visit its web page, how that information might be used and for what purposes, and disclosure practices. Our policy applies only to this site, and not to the websites or web pages of companies, organizations or individuals to which we provide links on our site.

Information not Personally Identifiable. The Government Printing Council may gather “site usage” information from all visitors to our site. This data or information is used for statistical purposes, to help determine general usage patterns in order to assure that our site is as useful and enjoyable as possible. This site usage and other statistical information may be made public at the discretion of the Government Printing Council.

We may also collect information about you that is not personally identifiable. Examples of this type of information include: the type of browser or computer operating system you are using; the domain name of the website from which you linked to our site; the areas of our site users go to; and the type of files that are downloaded. This site usage and other information—but not the user identity—may be made public at the discretion of the Government Printing Council. In addition, when you enter our site, we may store some information on your computer. This information is in the form of a “cookie” or similar file that will help us and users in many ways. For example, a cookie allows us to tailor a website to better match your interest and preferences. Your internet browser should allow you to erase “Cookies” from your computer hard drive, or block all cookies, or receive a warning in advance before a cookie is stored on your computer. Please refer to your browser instructions or the help icon on your browser to learn how to operate these functions.

We have no control over information which may be obtained and used on other sites to which we provide links.

Information Regarding Individual Users. Information regarding individual users will not be released without the individual user’s prior consent. Visitors to the site may be asked for individually identifiable information when signing up to use certain services that may be offered from time to time. We may contact subscribers to its services about changes to service, new services or printing opportunities. Any corporate advertisers on our site may wish to contact individual users who have supplied individually identifiable information. Such communications will only be made to users who have previously agreed to them.

Disclosure. The Government Printing Council reserves the right to disclose individually identifiable information for the purpose of complying with any applicable laws and government regulations or requests, or for the purpose of operating its system properly and to protect itself or its users. Where practical, we will attempt to obtain prior consent of the individual before disclosing individually identifiable information. This effort to obtain consent does not apply to site usage information which is described above.

Questions. If you have any questions regarding this privacy policy, you can send us an email to: mail@govprintcouncil.org
